Annie Oakley was born Phoebe Ann Moses in 1860 in Darke County, Ohio. She was the sixth of eight children born to Jacob and Susan Moses. Annie's father died when she was 10 years old, and her mother was forced to work as a seamstress to support the family.

Annie began shooting at a young age. She would help her mother hunt for rabbits and squirrels to help feed the family. Annie's natural talent for shooting was evident from an early age. She could hit a target from a long distance, and she was able to hit moving targets with accuracy.

In 1882, Annie met Frank Butler, a professional sharpshooter. Butler was impressed by Annie's shooting skills, and he invited her to join his Wild West show. Annie and Butler married in 1885, and they toured the world with Buffalo Bill's Wild West show.

Annie Oakley became one of the most popular performers in Buffalo Bill's Wild West show. She was known for her amazing accuracy and her ability to hit moving targets. Annie would often perform trick shots, such as shooting a dime off a man's head.

Annie Oakley retired from performing in 1902. She and Butler moved to Pinehurst, North Carolina, where they lived until Annie's death in 1926. Annie Oakley is buried in the Pinehurst Cemetery.

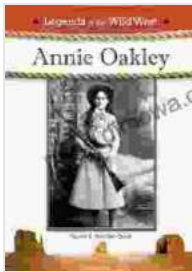

Annie Oakley was a true pioneer. She was one of the first women to achieve success in a traditionally male-dominated field. Annie's story is one of courage, determination, and triumph. She is an inspiration to all who dream of achieving great things.
